Yukon's Member of Parliament Brendan Hanley Announces Extended Hours at Little Gold Crossing

At the annual TIA Yukon Conference, Dr Brendan Hanley, Member of Parliament for the Yukon, announced the following changes to the Little Gold Border Crossing.

The Canada Border Services Agency (CBSA) is advising travellers that the Little Gold Creek port of entry will open for the summer season on Friday, May 17. Seasonal hours of operation will be from 9:00 am to 7:00 pm Pacific Daylight Time, seven days a week. The port is scheduled to remain open until Sunday, September 15.

This will enable travellers to use the crossing during the long weekends in May and September, and extends the season by an additional four weeks, weather permitting. These changes will apply in future years.

Adverse weather conditions are a significant factor in the area and may impact the opening and closing dates. Travellers should note that during the summer season the time in Yukon is one hour ahead of the time in Alaska. Travellers are encouraged to visit the CBSA Directory of Offices and Services or call 1-800-461-9999 for the latest information.

"This was the work of many. I want to thank all who worked so hard to get the Little Gold Creek season opening and closing dates that we need. The world needs the best possible access to see what the Yukon has to offer." - Brendan Hanley, Member of Parliament for the Yukon

TIA Chair Tyler Rose remarked "this is a welcome change for the tourism industry and we appreciate the challenges of orchestrating this with the Border Agencies of two different countries".

Klondike Visitor Association Board Member Brian Stethem stated "This is a big win for the tourism industry in Dawson City and will assist in bringing us back to pre-Covid operations, extending the tourism season."
